SEVEN "LITTLE TVA'S" ASKED BY ROOSEVELT

President Urges Congress To Pass Laws To Safeguard Against Floods, Droughts.

OUTLINES MAJOR PROGRAM

Projects Aim To Prevent Disaster And To Guard Nation's Resources.

By THE Associated Press
WASHINGTON, June 3—President Roosevelt asked congress today to set up seven "regional authorities" to administer federal power projects and to plan safety against floods, droughts and dust storms.

A comprehensive program for the seven "Little TVA's" was outlined in a special message.

In all the hydro-electric projects which have been or may be undertaken were part of a multiple purpose watershed development designed not only to guard against nature's calamities but to prevent their occurrence.

National Resources Guarded.

"The water-power resources of the nation must be protected from private monopoly and used for the benefit of the people," the President said in what was expected to be his last major legislative recommendation for this session.

He was ready for introduction in both houses to carry out his suggestions.

The seven regional authorities or agencies would plan and administer projects in the following areas:

1—Atlantic seaboard.

2—Great Lakes and Ohio valley.

3—Pennsylvanian and Cumberland river drainage basin.

4—Missouri and Red river of the south drainage basins.

5—Arkansas, Red and Rio Grande drainage basins.

6—Colorado and rivers flowing into the Pacific south of the California-Oregon line.

7—Columbia river basin.

The President said "he would have undisturbed the existing Mississippi river commission, because it was 'well equipped' to handle the problems immediately attending the channel of that great river."

Stresses Economic Element.

Declaring the proposal was in the interest of economy and the prevention of overlapping "on one-sided developments," Mr. Roosevelt said it would leave congress free to determine what projects should be undertaken within the limits of annual budgetary and nationalistic works planning policies.

"It, for example," he said, "the western could have had before he

COUNTY REA TO SET
FIRST POLE TODAY

Construction Work of $260,
000 Rural Power Project

Gets Under Way.

The first of approximately 30,000 poles to carry electrical lines to between 800 and 1,000 Marion county farm residents this year under the project of the Marion Rural Electric Cooperative Inc., was to be placed this afternoon near Harvey station, the crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad tracks and the Beaver-Foster road.

Business from the Farm Bureau Electric Cooperative headed by James L. Kelly of Marion, already has started more than 60 of the 250 miles of power line and will continue at a rate of workmen of the Paul L. Gilmore Co. of Columbus, which awarded the contract for construction of the lines yesterday.

The $260,000 project will be spread throughout the rural districts of the county as rapidly as possible, and it is expected the work will be well along in from 30 to 90 days.

Poles for the rural lines are being furnished by Preserved Poles Inc., an affiliate of the Baker Wood Preserving Co. of Marion. Current will be furnished by the Marion Reserve Power Co.

F. A. Davidson is president of the Marion Rural Electric Cooperative. Inc., of which every voter for the corporation's services will be a member. They will pay rates sufficient to meet operating costs and retire the federal REA loan over a long-time period.

DIZZY BALKS AT APOLOGY AND REMAINS SUSPENDED

By THE Associated Press
NEW YORK, June 3—Dizzy Dean today refused to sign any statement of apology to the National League for his actions on and off the field and remained under indefinite suspension.

Disciplined yesterday by Ford Frick, League president, for "conduct detrimental to the best interests of baseball," the famed right-hander of the St. Louis Cardinals, together with Manager Frank Frisch, held a two-hour conference with Frick today at 2:30 p. m.

Dean issued a flat denial that he ever had made statements attributed to him, which reflected upon the integrity of the National league's officers and umpires.

Mistaken Ideas And Funeral Costs

Mistaken ideas have caused many families to accept indifferent funeral service in an effort to keep the cost within their means.

Schaffner-Denzer Funeral Service has been built up to a standard rather than down to a price... But in maintaining high standards we have never lost sight of the needs of the family in moderate circumstances. The Schaffner family were the pioneers of funeral service in Marion and always have furnished funerals at prices every family could afford. As evidence of this and for public information we print.

Slayer Escaping On Horse, Caught By Stirrup Style

By The Associated Press
GALLUP, N. M., June 3.—An ex-con who attempted flight in unorthodox style on a horse—but went where horseback riding has its fine points—was held in a rickety county jail today for the slaying of a federal agent.

A veteran of the saddle whose eye was caught by the rider's buckled knees, caused by too short stirrup straps, arrested Guy Osborne, 24, accused Oklahoma automobile thief last night a few hours after Agent Truett E. Rose was shot.

His captor, Police Chief Kelsey Presley, said Osborne resignedly remarked, "I guess it's all up with me," after being informed of Rose's death.

Presley and Rose earlier had gone to the ranch home of Osborne's brother to arrest Guy on auto theft charges. After the slaying of Rose, Presley attempted to bring down the fleeing man but his gun misfired.

"I wish your gun had fired," Osborne was quoted later by the officer.

After the two officers arrived yesterday at the ranch, 20 miles south of Gallup, Presley remained in the living room while Rose accompanied Osborne into a bedroom.

Presley said Osborne fired. The bullet struck the agent in the right side.

Osborne emerged with the gun in his hand, Presley added. The officer's gun snapped on an empty chamber as the fugitive disappeared.

Indian trackers and a posse took the trail. Presley returned to the Osborne home in question the next evening. Preparing to leave the house, he thought it odd a ridge would use "highwater stirrups" unless he had put the saddle on hastily.

Osborne quietly lifted his hands and submitted to arrest.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

"I'm 197," Esther Tyler, "and I was shot in the shoulder. I was mortally shot in the heart." Mrs. Turner, a widow, stories of an attack on her home by a man who had come on the bluff. Aunt Mary, shot in the shoulder, then finished with sleeping pills. The killer, a tall young man, disappears and is seen the next day as the chauffeur and butler. William tells me he's a good boy."

10:15 P.M. OPTS TWO

We Look Up Higgins

A cold air from the sea, spinning simultaneously. Higgins stood on the dock at us. How had we been there? We had been there. It is something mysterious about our dubious friends. In addition, it is quite a sad face to face with a son of an old family whom you have known for years. My lips are sealed. I slipped the key case.

"Come in," I said. "Come had been in the next room. You were on hand when Miss Farrington was wounded. You even said to me 'the place is never to be open. We are and I am going to lock you in your room. You will be kept here until the police arrive.' Those strange eyes never ceased to look at my face nor even after I had completed my tale did Cook seem to move. No, it happened to him a space of fully 15 seconds. To a space where the old man stared out from his eyes.

"We're you all?" I can't seem to sleep and I thought I would make myself a cup of coffee."

He came down the stairs slowly as deliberately as he had ever descended them in his life. He was certainly a powerful factor in the room.

"My Jim," he said very quietly.

"I doubt whether he is a bad man. Do you believe what he is saying?"

"I do not know Higgins," I said.

A ghost of a smile crept his face.

"I see," he said. "Do you object to my having my coffee before you lock me up?"

"Don't take no chances with him," caressed Higgins.

And so we sat there waiting for that coffee waiting to be served by a man whom we regarded as a murderer.

I was glad I was ready over Jimmie. There will be a boat he'll be on. He was freed from the opium.

I could do nothing but murmur yes.

He was guilty. I was sure of it.

But sitting the location at him I couldn't see myself telling him so clearly.

Higgins, I said, you've got to me on the single question I've asked you—haven't you?

For a fraction of a second the eyes turned toward me. We're the rock faced eyes of a very old man.

In the front room, they were veiled and calculating.

What gives you that impression?"

I stood up. You were over out of your room on the night when Miss Blundell was killed. You were seen going into your room fully dressed just before I

Michael called you and reappeared.

As if you had been aware a moment later, you own he'd run in the house. You were seen coming down the stairs framed in a doorway before we discovered the injured cat when you told me that on it's best that I was making a mistake. Where and how, I could not see but I was sure that I was making one. I had a strong conviction that Higgins was guilty; he would never have taken the risk on as he had. If Higgins had done all the things we had imagined he's doing Higgins was "guilty" for he was in a boat a conceivable motive. And as far as men concerned with capacity to do such as placed as he was at sea. I didn't think so. It was a straw but I grasped it as quickly as I could.

"Higgins," I said, "haven't you anything to say to defend yourself?"

"Not a thing," he said.

It was consistent with my general view that this was although I had many qualms about his guilt. I no sooner spoke than the key of his pocket dropped into my pocket than I regarded the entire episode as closed. It was all over. And now what?

With a groan, I lay back in my chair. "I feel like a fat old hen," I said.

I wanted to go away from Higgins.

Without replying I made off down the corridor to the music hall. I lay still, gazing there and I could hear the faint muffled murmur of voices in Mr. Farrington's room. I knew that I should go there and tell them what had happened. I knew that they were in all probability working themselves into a "fire frenzy" waiting for me. But I was in no mood to face Mr. Farrington — or even Michael.

The Case Against Higgins

I can do without in the cold seas of oblivion" when I made the helped myself to a stiff drink and sat down to think. For the most part I was concerned with the whereabouts of the Skipper Higgins in his right mind. Witness for his abil to be about him was his wife, the skipper of the boat. Octavia Higgins, started to tell me she was a good woman and I could not doubt her word.

I went over and over the questions. I took up her drink and her another. I threw myself down at the desk and tried to write. The feel of a pen in my hand was come to me familiar. More to quiet my nerves than in hopes of penning anything I set to work.

HIGGINS

Knew of the presence of Norman Farrington. whereabouts A. H. Moore of the death of Jude was not known. Easy to imagine him in his confidence of every single person involved to date—Judge Norman Farrington, Mr. Farrington and the Skipper. Seen up to when the cat was killed and the room was up. Lied about it afterward.

WILLIAM

Convicted of robbery. Served full term in spite of interest of Mr.

Ward.

Olly persons who might have removed him from W. San's room. Higgins in his right mind would be in his right mind. The skipper seemed to be out of the question. And I could not doubt his word.

200 High School Students Dance At Junior-Senior Prom

Youth ad la flir last night at Hotel sw Garden when junior Harding High and Thomas Edison Junior High schools entered the Harding seniors at the annual junior-senior prom.

More than 200 young people danced to the tuneful ditties of Bob McPherson.

White dotted sailor's cap every shade and style, "I've a date to see," "I'm a graduate," and "I'm a senior" were the hits.

The grand march which opened the prom was led by Toy Head president of the Harding junior class and John Wilhelm senior class president, and Mary Jane Brown.

Each year more and more of the girls take advantage of the spring mode of cotton materials for informal dances and party dancers were a bevy of delightfully dressed girls.

Our girls' blonde wore a red-blue all-over print cotton dress with a bustle. The long full skirt was emphasized by bands of pink which fell in short puffed sleeves and lace at the hemline. The blonde's corset was sheer pink lace and a wreath of pink flowers in her hair to complete her ensemble.

Girlishly sophisticated was the black net frock with puffed sleeves of white embroidered organza which fell from off-the-shoulder straps. A recently cut square neck with rows of white ruching at the full hem and a wreath of pink roses at the waist.

It is to be a pleasure in the days to come to attend the wedding supper 20 years ago.

The junior Sunday will include the All Ich and Blith families and will be held at Lincoln park.

Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich have two daughters, Mrs. Hazel Bell of Lincoln avenue and Mrs. P. L. Wood of 150 East Farmington street. Invited to join them to the anniversary day July 2 are Mrs. M. Milner, Mrs. Charles of 59 East Farming street and Mrs. Clyde Davis of Neumann who attended the wedding supper 20 years ago.

JURY SELECTED IN $10,000 SUIT HERE

Action Against Electric Company Begins In County Court

A jury was seated in common pleas court this morning in the trial of the $10,000 damage action of Walton Leuthold of near Bucyrus against the former Central Utilities Co., now part of the Marion Reserve Power Co. Following statements by attorneys the jury was taken to the scene of the accident in which Leuthold claims to have been injured when a high tension line ruptured by the utility company broke in a storm. The accident occurred two miles north of Bucyrus. Leuthold is represented by Attorneys A. S. Leuthold and Charles Gullinger of Bucyrus and Fred L. Garhart of Marion. J. M. Strelitz and H. L. Dowler of the law firm of Gullner, Strelitz and Gullner represent the power company.

Leuthold alleges that he suffered an electrical shock when the house wiring became charged with high voltage current following the breaking of the power line near his residence. The injury occurred he claims when he touched a light cord while attempting to assist his mother who also was injured.

MUSHROOMS GET SEASONS MIXED

I seen mushrooms are responding to the boom enthusiasm spreading over the country a Marion resident found this morning.

El Harold found two full mushroom rooms of the button variety in the yard of his mother's home on Campbell street this morning. Mr. Harold who knows enough about the fungi to know whereof he speaks says it is the first time he ever knew of button mushrooms which should grow in the fall putting in an appearance in June.

"Baumgardner-Ohio" at La Mesa, N. M.

A girl who hiked alone stopped at an eating place in the south of La Mesa, N. M., and at the tourist register there signed "—Ohio," according to information received last night from the Canton Stickeler, director of the search for Ruth E. Baumgardner, Ohio Wesleyan student from Lakewood, who was last seen from her college dormitory about a month ago yesterday.

Information, as printed in the Plain Dealer, was given in a telegram from M. M. Clegg, proprietor of the eating place, who said the girl looked like Ruth. A picture of Ruth he had in El Paso, Tex., newspaper showing the girl west West Point, Mo.

Stickeler stopped at the head of the Cleveland office of William J. Burns Detectives, last night requested Burns' services in Dallas to fly to El Paso and try to find the trail of the girl, who he believed she was going on to the city 20 miles from Dallas.

John Baumgardner stopped at the office and bought lunch, where he telephoned Stickeler. "Wearing a blue corduroy jacket and orange slacks. She said she was writing poems. Signed register Baumgardner from Ohio."

After Stickeler telephoned for further information from La Mesa, Wharton replied that he was sure the girl was the one whose picture he saw in an El Paso paper along with a story about Ruth's father, Carl Baumgardner, 2900 Arthur avenue, Lakewood, offering a $500 reward for information leading to the finding of his daughter.

Stickeler believes that if the girl seen in La Mesa was Ruth, she might have, for the irony of it, signed her right last name to the register, thinking that such a clue left in a town of 600 in the far southwest would not be discovered.

Heads from Waco, Tex.

Possibly it was only coincidental, but another telegram received last night by Stickeler was from a man in Waco, in the east-central part of Texas, saying he was sure he had seen Ruth enter a picture show there.

Stickeler said his Dallas office would ask the United States border patrol and state police in the southwest to keep a sharp lookout for the girl.

A girl with two light streaks in her medium blonde hair—streaks such as Ruth has in hers—traveled by bus from Toledo to Cleveland on Sunday night, May 29, five days after Ruth disappeared from Decatur, Mrs. H. E. Rader, living on Rural Route 3 near Chagrin Falls, told the Plain Dealer late yesterday.

This girl, who occupied seat beside Mrs. Rader, said she had been ill and could not remember who she was, but when asked by Mrs. Rader for her name replied: "Oh, just call me Ruth."

Mrs. Rader believed that the girl said she was going eventually to Savannah, Ga., and hoped to sing in night clubs because "I hate school."

The girl, weary and distraught, remarked that she was going from Cleveland to Akron and thence to Georgia, Mrs. Rader said. Mrs. Rader offered to get her a hotel room or to take the girl to her home in Chagrin Falls, but she said that while she was telephoning her husband from the bus station the girl boarded an Akron-bound bus.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

CHICAGO—Don't sniff now—but the refiners are sweetening your gasoline, to make it smell better.
